
Contents

Dedication and Acknowledgments	ix
About the Authors	xiii
Introduction	1
1. What It Means to Be “In It Together” in Education	5
Why Are Partnerships Important?	6
Why Empowerment May Be Essential to Person and Group Success	9
References	10
2. An Involved Classroom Community	11
The Critical Importance of Building Partnerships	13
The Status Quo in Education “Just Ain’t Gonna Work” Either	14
Understanding Interconnected Spheres of Influence	16
The Crucial Importance of Family Involvement	23
Summary	30
References	31
3. Infusing the Assets of Students and Families Into Classroom Learning	33
The Importance of Interaction	35
What Involvement and Engagement of Students and Their Families Is Meaningful?	38
Summary	45
References	45
4. Preparing for Classroom Community	47
Asking Questions About the Classroom Community	48

Asking Questions About Diverse Learners and Learning Needs	51
Setting a Reassuring, Positive, and Safe Tone	55
Low-Investment Activities	55
High-Investment Activities	58
Optional-But-Useful Relationship-Building Activities	61
Laying the Foundation for a Community Around a Classroom	66
Summary	67
References	67
5. The Academic Learning Benefits of Being “In It Together”	69
Imparting a Positive Message That All Learners Can Learn	73
Understanding That All Learners and Families Are Smart and Can Contribute to Learning	78
Making Learning Socially and Personally Relevant	78
Creating a Caring Community of Learners	80
Understanding the Process and Task Elements of Academic Interactions	83
Making Learning Visible and Transparent	85
Using the Support of the School Community to Make Learning Work	86
Working With the Community at Large to Encourage Learning	89
Summary	94
References	94
6. Using Classroom Events to Empower Students and Families	97
Giving Students a Choice	98
Why Do This?	99
Understanding the Importance of Partnerships	99
Partnerships and Classroom-Based Events	102
Understanding the School Year Calendar to Plan for Optimal Involvement	102
Types of Classroom-Based Events	104
Building Student-to-Student Community	112
Summary	114
References	115