Corwin Announces Its Second Annual Women in Education Conference

LOS ANGELES, CA (October 3, 2017)—Corwin, the premier publisher of PreK-12 professional resources, is excited to invite women educators and thought-leaders to Corwin's Second Annual Women in Education Conference. The conference will be held at The DoubleTree by Hilton Los Angeles- Westside, Culver City, CA on November 2-3, 2017.

Last year's event was successful in bringing a dynamic group of women to participate in a meaningful forum to collaborate, grow, and reach their full potential as teachers, leaders, experts, and influencers in education. Dr. Danielle Fullan Kolton from the Manitoba Teachers' Society said, "The conference was an empowering way to bring women together to meet, laugh, and learn. The intimate nature of the gathering lent itself to a feeling of safety and comfort with other women who face similar challenges and barriers. The authors and presenters were 'real' women who were accessible and encouraging, and I sincerely hope to see this conference again."

With over 20 sessions and expert speakers, this year's conference features the following topics: Collective Efficacy; Exposing Gender Bias; and Washington's Journey Toward Addressing the Leadership Pipeline for Women. Keynotes will be led by Liz Wiseman, Silicon Valley's top leadership executive consultant, award-winning rocket scientist and TED speaker Olympia LePoint, international educational and communications consultant Jennifer Abrams, and best-selling author Jenni Donohoo.

Registration for the 2017 Women in Education Conference is $199 for individuals and is available at www.corwin.com/WIE2017. For more information about Corwin conferences and institutes, visit www.corwin.com/institutes.
